

A NEW EARTH

APRIL 2020

A PROCLAMATION TO THE WORLD

The time has come, essentially, when mankind reaps what it has for eons sown; a time that has been called the grand harvest of souls—the proving of humanity, and with it, the raising of consciousness forevermore for our species on this planet. We face now the final trials of this cycle—the great catalyst that will push us into a golden age wherein a very different existential reality awaits us. The time has come for a New Earth.

Darkness has suddenly and violently taken the spotlight on the global stage in 2020, in the guise of a naturally occurring but secretly commissioned virus, one hyped far beyond what is merited; a string of public upsets engineered to cause tension and division—a class war, disguised as a race war, and all channels of news and information allied in an effort to sew confusion, distrust, and anger for our president and for one another. We have seen false cures and evil technologies—a means to an end, which comes in the form of a globalized control system; the ultimate system of enthrallment, and a key part of a plan wrought by men in secret, yet presented to the world in the name of salvation—the salvation of our planet.

In this plan, the economy would be collapsed, people made to rely financially on their governments, small businesses destroyed, with mega-corporations rising higher. As the rich get richer and the poor get poorer, the middle class would be dissolved. Rural areas would be emptied, and people, like sheep, herded into a handful of major cities for consolidation and control. The general public would become an army of worker drones to support the abhorrently rich.

Much of this began long ago, though most are blind to it. Indeed, the poor are the greatest tool of the rich—willing slaves, blissfully ignorant to their servitude, their invisible chains gradually shortened, and their fetters slowly tightened.

Our enemies are everywhere, but few can see them. They whisper into your ears, telling you who you should idolize, who you should heed and laud, and who you should believe are your enemies, turning one man against the other until we are divided, confused, angry, and blinded by the storm, manipulating our emotions, so we do not see the true danger that seeks to enslave the whole world.

They who hold the reins are, by all definitions, criminals who have come to great power and esteem, many widely known and greatly beloved, including actors, music artists, philanthropists, and all manner of celebrities, as well as CEOs, scientists, politicians, bankers, and more, holding enough social, political, and financial influence to become all but invincible and to make their secrets all but invisible.

With their unchecked and unparalleled power, they have bought the news, they have bought the media, entertainment, military, intelligence, the banks, the corporations, pharmaceuticals, the courts and more; a massive, global web carrying out covert operations, but hidden in plain sight. In the darkness, the evil festers. Evil begets evil in this game. The wicked support the wicked, and good people are forced to play by their rules or pay a price too dear. The weeds choke out the wildflowers, especially in the swamp. And the more established they become, the more twisted. In the higher echelons, human hunting, sexual torture and bodily mutilations are the greatest forms of entertainment for twisted minds, and the blood of terrorized children is their currency.

Indeed, these people seem hardly human, and yet, they are us. They are not monsters, but victims themselves, brought up and schooled by the same twisted creatures they have become. At the same time they seek to enslave the world, they are themselves slaves to their own dark masters from an unseen world whom they seek ever to appease, driven both by fear and lust, in order to secure their promised rewards.

They are now working faster than ever to take the necessary measures and the carefully calculated actions to tighten their grip to where we can no longer escape, even when we have awakened to our terrible situation. They control the schools to keep us mindless and stupid; they control food and drugs to keep us sick and dying; they control the money system to keep us poor and resourceless; they control every conduit of mass information, including the news, so that we cannot see them nor reveal their true form.

This is the state of our world in 2020. It resembles the plot a science fiction novel. And so who would believe such a thing? The answer, of course, is that few do. This is what the self-serving ones count on. This is what they thrive on. It is the reason they are still here, concocting wars, manipulating public thought, and stepping on the collective head of mankind. And every time a person scoffs at what they deem to be conspiracy theory, those in their high and dark meeting places laugh at our collective naïvety, and thus they are allowed to continue, as none can match them without the support of the people. And so, for decades, they have infiltrated every facet of our society. Left unchecked, the world would certainly be lost to this powerful, invisible enemy. Yet, a thing happened the enemy did not intend; something that would turn the tide of war.

A man arrived on the global political stage. Known as a giant in business, he will, in time, become counted a giant among all men, and we will all learn the true extent of his strength; a strength that would be challenged every day. Beloved by most before his sudden and unexpected rise in politics, he was mocked, criticized and demonized at his appearance. This man would find his every action declared an attack on American citizens by a bought-and-paid-for media complex. But why? What was their motive? Who was this man to be a threat to their establishment? A businessman, a celebrity, a billionaire, but with an unusual profile—the perfect profile to turn the tide of a war he never wanted to fight, yet this would prove to be his life’s true mission. All of his acclaimed success before that time would prove to be his training; grooming for his impossible task.

Asked to run and to fund his own campaign so as to not be answerable to any certain party or vested interest group, the business mogul, wrestling with his own feelings, was reluctant to throw away his money, career, and reputation for their cause. Yet presented with the ugly truth, his conscience won him over, and so he rolled up his sleeves and took the job.

This is his ultimate destiny.

For four years, he waged a silent war against a silent and ancient enemy—an enemy which knows no bounds of evil and which sought to weaponize even the very citizens of the United States against him and against justice, truth, and love. A good and decent man, abused, betrayed, undermined, beaten down, yet tirelessly persevering against the firestorm of the global enemy. History will come to honor the man who would give everything to save America, the last bastion of the Earth and the key to its eventual deliverance. His soul will receive his glory owed.

In this supremely loving universe, help comes in many forms. We have long been aided by forces unseen. This aid comes from the unseen beyond: angels, extraterrestrials, physical, ethereal, and other-dimensional.

These, our friends we do not see, fight every day for humanity, a race very much in its infancy, while most of us remain completely ignorant to them.

Additionally, an international alliance was formed to counteract this evil. Many nations work daily in secret toward the day when they will snap shut the trap they have set and expose the evil without question. Then the people will see as one and raise their voices in unity and shake the ground and topple the dark towers that have been carefully constructed amidst our own so we would not see. In spite of all their cunning and all their power and all their subtle workings, they fail to see that humanity will never be enslaved, because we are more powerful than they and by many times. Human sovereignty will never be distinguished. In truth, they fear us, for they know our true strength. They know they can not beat us out in the open, but try instead to lull us to sleep. They have made a grave mistake in 2020. In their impatience and arrogance, they have overstepped, and they have woken the sleeping lion.

Thus begins the Great Awakening and the last war on earth. There will be casualties. Many will lose their lives and some much more. Some will be mourned where they should not be, and others wrongly celebrated, yet the truth will ultimately prevail and pervade society through natural means. When the war is at last won, mankind will slowly come to know the qualities of true freedom and a world of real, genuine acceptance, and true love will be fostered for all men by all men. Humanity will awaken like never before, evolving to a higher level of consciousness. We will shift into a golden age, wherein we will meet those who have helped and guided us for so long, both from beyond this world and beyond this dimension. In this unprecedented age, humanity, free at long last, will rediscover its God-given sovereignty, its infinite worth, and indomitable power, and the Earth, mother Gaia, will awaken and blossom into the majestic and beautiful paradise which she was created to be. Then we, having earned our stripes, may, by divine right, peacefully live out our time in our self-created heaven until, at last, we fade into the higher realms. We of the Great Awakening School encourage only hope and wish love and light on all people moving forward.
